HIS LAST TROPHY

He was a strange find in such a place. High on the side of a British Columbia mountain were the buildings of a man who had not been working. The way up was by winding road through dense forests, where giant cedars and fir made pinnacles of mere men. But when the mountain was reached, where the trees had been cleared away, the buildings erected, a magnificent view looked out over the wooded mountain-side, the long narrow lake 1700 feet below, and the mountains on the opposite side, with a glacier slowly grinding its way down between them.

We entered a long building of split logs and hand-hewn shingles, most of it was empty or stored with various mining materials. But at one end a room was partitioned off, and fitted with shelves. In the room was the best private library, with one exception, we have never seen. It was a scholar's treasure house.

Presently the owner of it came in a medium sized man of sixty-five, benevolent, intelligence, scholarship shone in every feature. The one drawback to a feast of reason was that he was very deaf. It was near meal-time, and he hastened to prepare a meal. As he bustled about, boiling potatoes, frying bacon, cutting bread, browning tea, and all the while laying the spotlessly clean but unspiced table, we wondered more and more how he came to be there, the caretaker of an unworked mine in the heart of British Columbia.

Some things we learned. He was an American from the New England States. He was a minister of the sound. He had been a professor of mathematics. He had his degrees as a surveyor and engineer. His name was the same as that of the President of a Great New England University. Where they related? Yes, there were first cousins. Then why was one cousin presiding over a university of world-wide fame, and the other, and his library, hidden in the heart of a mountain? He did not tell. Even to the one with whom he was most intimate, the one to whom he was more than a father, he never told.

And this was the old minister and professor's last trophy. One winter night down in the little mining town, hanging about the bar, he had found a homeless wanderer, who was a stray from a great English city, a friendless penniless orphan, who in this mining town and amid surroundings for which he was unfitted, had come to the end of his little resources, and was facing death by frost or starvation.

The pension of one who came to seek and to save the lost wanderer again the heart of the old minister and professor. He was one of life's castaways himself; but he could still give helping hand to another castaway. He took the homeless English lad to the spot he had found on the mountain side, fed him, clothed him and shared with him his blankets.

Unlike many, the lad was grateful. He reformed his ways. He exerted himself to please his benefactor. He was quick to learn, and the old teacher delighted to teach. When we knew them they had been like father and son for several years. The old professor was sharing his little pittance of a monthly wage with the stranger youth, and besides was giving him the equivalent of a University education. And to all appearances the young man was proving worthy.

He never told his preceptor what sent him into exile. We never learned the beginning of the story. But we knew its end. One winter day a snow-drove down the mountain side cutting a swathe through the forest like a scythe. It passed between the buildings of the mine at a moment when the old professor was going from one to another. When they dug him out he was dead and his tragedy whatever it may have been was dead with him.

But even his exile and his lonely life were not in vain. He had gained even the equivalent of a more bread from the burning, and he who cares for the lilies of the field and marks the sparrow's fall will not forget. "He who converteth a sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall cover a multitude of sins."

Pa took me with him hunting patridges yesterday. We went way out in the woods about five miles, and I could look for the birds. Pa said I could be his little bird dog. If you see any birds Bobbie, and Pa, I will track them off the tree in the Jim, sed Pa.

I don't want to be a bird dog, I sed. You mite shoot me. Pa, I sed. My eagle eye is on the A-ker, sed Pa. I have seen brane, sed Pa, & I can tell a little boy from a patridge with one swift glance, sed Pa.

So I went away aghed & looked all the way up the hill, and I found a patridge for a long time. At last I saw one (1) setting up in a thorn apple tree & I rushed back & told Pa about it. Alas, sed Pa. Lead on, & there will I follow, sed Pa.

So I tried to find the bird which I had seen in the tree, but it must of fit away while I was telling Pa about it, anyhow it wasn't there. Bobbie, sed Pa, did you lie to your mired?

No I didn't, I sed, & if you think I sed you can git a new bird dog, I sed. Maybe you that you saw a bird, I sed.

I saw the bird, I sed. I wish I was a regular bird dog, I sed & then you you called me a liar I could not understand you, I sed, & I wouldn't feel no bad. I ain't going to play dog no more, I sed.

I beg your parding, Bobbie, sed Pa. I didn't mean to hurt your feelings, sed Pa, & I sed. I wish I was a regular bird dog, I sed & then you you called me a liar I could not understand you, I sed, & I wouldn't feel no bad. I ain't going to play dog no more, I sed.

Yes, I sed. They fly off on the tree, I sed. I may not be a very good bird dog, I sed, but I can tell a dog as you are of a hunter, I sed. Do you want me to chase you? sed Pa. Go ahead now & chase a other patridge, sed Pa.

So I went ahead & after a while I found a other patridge on a bush & I went back & told Pa up, & Pa mised aplice.

That settles it, I sed. I ain't going to be a dog no longer. I don't blame you, Bobbie, sed Pa. I will admit that my eye-ite is not so keen as you used to be, sed Pa. I will not ask you to be a dog no more, sed Pa.

I guess Pa's eyes is near dimmer than what they used to be. Christ-mas time I will buy him sum spectacles with gold rims if I can sell stuff of these here essays in the paper. I would rather be a bird dog than a hunk-wich can sed.

The surest way to avoid Winter infections is to breathe as much fresh air as possible. Everybody should adopt the open window habit.

The ventilation of the home is especially important. Proper ventilation cannot be maintained unless the windows are opened, the degree of opening to be regulated by the severity of the weather. They should be lowered more or less from the top and raised more or less from the bottom, not through the sash.

Pneumonia, tuberculosis and colds are bad diseases. The open window habit goes a long way toward reducing their prevalence.

During lunch hour or at some other suitable period all the windows of workrooms, offices and schools should be opened. Influenza, tonsillitis, stannant atmosphere and filling the rooms with fresh and invigorating cold air. In the case of congested places the doors should be thrown open at the end of each performance.

Ideally, there should be a constant inflow of air and a constant outlet, for a free and continuous circulation of fresh air is essential for the maintenance of a wholesome atmosphere.

Overcrowding in street cars and other public conveyances is a menace to health, since it encourages unhygienic conditions which conduce to the spread of disease. Coughing and sneezing in such conveyances infect the atmosphere, which is breathed over and over again by the passengers, thus directly exposing them to the greatest influence of influenza, colds and other infections.

Proper use and supervision of the means of ventilation in the home, the avoidance of overcrowding, the keeping of food far toward protecting the traveling public from the spread of disease.

MACLEOD CURLING CLUB MEETING

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Macleod Curling Club was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening. Dr. A. H. N. Kennedy, president of the club for the season 1920, called the meeting to order and by the attendance of many curlers a successful season is looked forward to.

The committee to obtain the names of all curlers was selected consisting of Dr. Kennedy, R. W. Stewart, J. T. Marks, C. W. E. Gardiner, Alex. MacDonald and this committee has been instructed to meet at the Executive on the 14th of this month.

Fred Perkins has been working at the curling rink for some time, and the cold weather sets in curling will be full swing inside of a week. All new curlers are being recruited and in their names to the Secretary.

Of course, if all the armlets and navies in the world were abolished at once, there'd be quite a bit of unemployment for a while. But there is little fear that the job won't be done gradually.

A BUM GUSS

The Mail and Empire said last week in effect: "Mackenzie King is another John-a-bum." Poor guessing.

If the proposal to freeze the accompany in which the former monarchs, Charles and Zita, fled to Hungary from Switzerland to recover a lost throne by a coup d'etat is acted upon, serious developments of this momento may be anticipated.

For instance, there may be in the containing a museum containing the benefit of posterity relics associated with the leaders of the long-side in the great war. Among these might be the boots which William I Hannover wore when he crossed into Holland, the favorite uniform of Enfer Tasha, the railway ticket which he used when he fled to Belgium.

It was an uncomfortable place for the monarch, a portion of the bows of the Blucher, sunk in the Jutland battle, the Admiral Tirpitz's written order for a relentless submarine warfare, and the protocol which was drawn up when the chief of the Austrian imperial staff announced to "the Simple" the collapse of Austria-Hungary's military power. In another hundred years, perhaps, the Parisian will be parading the identical carriage through the city streets on Armistice Day!

PRINTER WAS PEEVED

Charley Harp, in the printing business, got slightly peeved at a letterhead from a doctor who wanted him to print several thousand letter-heads, different sizes, different grades and different colors, and wanted the printer to hold standing. So Charley took his typewriter in hand and wrote:

"Am in the market for bids on one operation for appendicitis. One, two or five-inch incision—with or without ether, also with or without nurse. If appendix is found to be sound, want operations to include putting name book and controlling order. If removal successful, bidder is expected to hold incision open for about sixty days, as I expect to be in the market for an operation for gallstones at that time and want to save the extra cost of cutting."—Kansas City Post

REV. G. D. ARMSTRONG AT THE METHODIST CHURCH LAST SUNDAY

Community Recreation 1—The Dance

Quite a keen interest was taken in the discussion upon the dance at the evening service at the Methodist Church last Sunday. After outlining the policy of the Church upon the question of amusements as set forth in the famous "Footnotes to the Rules of the Church," Mr. Armstrong stated that it was not at all the intention of the Church or its ministry to dictate to individuals what they shall or shall not do, the policy of the church is not repressive or prohibitory but it is the plain duty of the ministry of the church to state clearly the fundamental principles upon which right conduct is to be based. The application of these principles to conduct must be left to the enlightened Christian conscience of the individual.

Dancing, like music, is a universal feature in human life. It is the natural response of the human body to emotion and as such is capable of being greatly utilized in education. The evil that is not essential to dancing, but lies in the abuse of it, is the art by evil-minded persons who have exploited it to gratify their passion or by inordinate fascination have induced the minds of many who have fallen in this form of pleasure, to the reciprocal of other worthy interests in life.

Referring to the Children's Masquerade ball recently held at Macleod, Mr. Armstrong stated that in his judgment, the promotion of such an enterprise had been actuated by kindness of heart rather than soundness of judgment and he repeated the exclamation of such an entertainment as distinctly detrimental to school work and the overstimulation of the natural forces which are at work in the adolescent period as injurious to the physical, mental and moral well-being of young people. At the same time, he heartily commended the introduction of Folk Dancing under the guidance of the educational authorities and the promotion of such an enterprise had been actuated by kin-

Annual Ratepayers' Meeting

The Annual Ratepayers' Meeting was held in the Town Hall on Friday last. About fifty of the ratepayers were present. Mayor Fawcett, Councillors Morris, McLeod, Thewlis, Gardner and McLeod were also in attendance. Councillor MacDonald being out of town. Promptly at eight o'clock the Mayor called the meeting to order, asking the meeting to elect a chairman for the evening, and on motion Mayor Fawcett took the chair. He expressed his appreciation to the citizens attending the meeting, remarking that he recognized that the financial conditions of the past years were no exception to those of the present year, and that it was necessary to do something to bring the town back to its own business in order to hold it steady, and for that reason it was the greater pleasure that so many of the citizens still maintained a real interest in the welfare of the town. The Mayor explained that the work of the year had been devoted to three particular things: (1)—The road-making of the power plant, installing an internal combustion engine whereby an enormous saving in fuel cost had been accomplished. The mayor further stated that if they were compelled to burn coal at the present time at its increased cost, including the increased cost of the assistance that it would be so great under present conditions that the plant could not operate. (2)—The adjustment of all sub-division property and cancellation of the same. This had involved a very large amount of work, and was being accomplished under a special Statute passed for the purpose of alleviating sub-division difficulties all over the province. (3)—The obtaining title and making final adjustment of the title to the lands used for Public Works and reported that this was nearing its last stage. There had of course been the usual routine work of the council and for their attention to this work as well as the larger items the mayor expressed his keen appreciation of the assistance of the council during the year. Each and every member of the council had honestly labored to the best of his ability in endeavoring to maintain such reasonable efficiency in the town service and yet hold the expenses as low as possible. He also expressed his appreciation of the assistance that he and his council had received from

Mr. Brown, the local manager of the City of Commerce. During the year an occasional complaint had been heard from old citizens, but the Mayor pointed out that he was not certain what the ratepayers of the Town of Macleod had voted for in the past year, and that he was not certain what the ratepayers would have to be paid for, he stated also that honest criticism and advice was always welcome by the present council, they were all ratepayers and quite as much interested as any other citizen in keeping the taxes as low as possible to the lowest point possible.

He then called on Mr. Brown, secretary, to read the report of the statement, which had already been published and also distributed during the evening. Mr. Brown explained several of the items, after which the mayor asked for any inquiries, but the statement was so plain, and had already been before them, no further questions were asked. He then called on Councillor McLeod for a few remarks, after which the superintendent of public utilities was called on to explain his work since he had taken charge of the public utilities. Councillor McLeod gave a very lucid and convincing explanation of how he found matters at the plant when he came here and what had been done.

On taking the floor Mr. Pearson recalled the excitement that prevailed at the time he arrived here, however, he said as we were employed as an engineer and not a politician, he went to work to find out what the utilities that he had taken over were in. He found that the plant had not been maintained in a condition conducive to economy, the water works were in a very bad condition and the council had not been able to distribute the town, where in the neighborhood of a 1,000,000 gallons of water a day were going to waste through leaks, there was not one minute running of water on the line making it impossible to work at repairs at the intake. Further, we were selling the C.P.R. water at half cost on a five year contract, also supplying the Flour Mills with power under the same conditions. The town was one of the poorest paid in Alberta.

The electric distribution lines were in a very bad state, the plant was $15,000 in debt and was losing around $1200 a month. At this point Mr. Pearson humorously remarked that he thought the council should have secured the services of an undertaker rather than an engineer.

In September, 1919, the Gas Co. refused to supply further gas for boiler use which necessitated the use of expensive coal, further improvements were made with the object of saving down fuel expenses, but after various improvements had been made the fuel controller raised the price of coal, and even when slack was used at 30 cents a ton it was still impossible to make the revenue meet the expenses.

The speaker then explained that the loss could only be stopped by the installation of a more modern plant, and there appeared to be nothing else to do but either close the plant down or go on piling up a stupendous debt. In sight for the purchase of new machinery. About this time, Mr. Pearson explained, he heard that a gas engine generator was for sale in Calgary. He explained in detail the difficulties he met with in securing the machinery without money. However, he was able to do so and was now paying for it out of its earnings. This installation made a very considerable reduction in the plant fuel account. It appears it was necessary to retain two boilers on steam for emergencies in the water works department. This difficulty has since been overcome by the installation of a gas engine drive pump secured very much along the lines of the first set and paid for out of its earnings. In addition to this work the water intake and wells had been fixed up, the majority of the leaks stopped with the result that the town now had excellent fire pressure and about two and a half hours' water storage against emergencies. Mr. Pearson went on to explain that the Mill Contract expired the first of the year and an account of being unable to come to any terms the supply of power was discontinued. The P. contract expired on June of this year and after some negotiation a new agreement was entered into for 10 cents per 1,000 gallons in place of the old rate of 5 1/2 cents.

On account of better conditions prevailing in the plant it had been possible to pay the staff more reasonably and also to put $15,000 insurance on the plant and contents whereas previously no insurance existed. Nothing has been done to straighten out the water works.

Mr. Jerey, the local manager of the City of Commerce. During the year an occasional complaint had been heard from old citizens, but the Mayor pointed out that he was not certain what the ratepayers of the Town of Macleod had voted for in the past year, and that he was not certain what the ratepayers would have to be paid for, he stated also that honest criticism and advice was always welcome by the present council, they were all ratepayers and quite as much interested as any other citizen in keeping the taxes as low as possible to the lowest point possible.

en out the conditions of the pole lines and improve the street lighting, great deal of pressure had been brought to bear on the superintendent by the Workmen's Compensation Board on account of the dangerous conditions of the distribution system but he had promised to do something in the coming year when funds would be available for this work. Going to the power house Mr. Pearson explained that the debt payment on the plant was spread over a period of thirty years, this meant that when the plant was paid for, our home could only represent between thirty-five and forty cents on the dollar, of the actual amount of money paid. He did not condemn this particular system by any means but he wished to emphasize the fact that during the next two years the value of the plant and the increased $25,000 of it, by February 1st of the coming year this would be totally paid and that instead of paying for the next thirty years the profits would accrue to the tax payers. In other words, the speaker said we have $25,000 worth of machinery instead of $25,000 worth of debt. The cost of running steam plants had risen very rapidly of late and it would be impossible to run our old steam plant under $3000 a month, whereas last month the operating cost was only $2000. Mr. Pearson asked his audience to believe that everything that had been done had been done for engineering reasons only. Most people had a very large idea of what was being done but he believed he had succeeded in convincing the utilities on a sound engineering and financial basis. In conclusion the superintendent remarked that there had been some talk about Macleod supporting a white colored engineer, but he reminded them that their utilities represent an investment of $200,000 in the town, and that for 1000 a year he was asked "Do you think a job of this size requires a competent executive or not?"

After Mr. Pearson's report the meeting was thrown open for inquiries. Several ratepayers asked questions and were given all information they desired. The superintendent expressed themselves as particularly pleased and satisfied with the work, and the council recognized that they were all trying to do their best to stabilize the financial condition of the town's affairs.

On motion the meeting was adjourned—meeting followed by the School Board Meeting.

KID MCCOY AGAIN SEEN IN HIS OLD PRIZE RING TOGS

On the program of the latest exposition of the "vicious art" made by David Wark Griffith from a story by Thomas Burke, "Broken Blossoms," the name of Norman Selby will be found, playing the part of prize-fighter, a part which this Indiana man played so well in real life. Austin who was "Broken Blossoms" during his time at the Empress Theatre last Wednesday and Thursday, will learn with considerable interest behind this engagement of Selby, known to the ring as "Kid McCoy," lies a story.

Battling Burrows is the father of little 15-year-old Larry, to whom the mystery of life and death is brought by the Chinese poet, Chang Huan. Of his creator writes: "Battling was a type that is too common in the eastern districts of London; a type that aspects all accepted classifications. He wouldn't be classed. He was a mixture of type of athleticism and degeneracy. He could run like a deer, leap like a cat, and was a great fighter. He was a drink like a nutcracker. He was a bully; he had the courage of the high seas. He was an open-air sportsman; he had the vices of a French decadent."

Yet with all his decadence over the tongue of the East Indian doctor he had to come, at last, to meet the fate of the fighter.

With his quick sense of appropriateness it was plain to Mr. Griffith that the fight of Battling Burrows in the prize ring must be no less realistic and arduous than any of the other scenes in his moving picture drama of the London slums. And so he picked up on men who, even if he had passed the age when fighting is a joy, yet remains in the memories of his admirers, as the one clean, crafts, adept master of his profession.

So it is that once more in "Broken Blossoms" you see Kid McCoy, with all his old cleverness; his contempt for his ring money; his smashing blows and deft defense, trying to beat down the brutal father of poor broken Larry, and so cringing the power of his skill that when Battling Burrows emerges victorious from the ring and flamed with pride, his decadence is ready for the savage cry. "My daughter with a Chin! Blimey, I'll show 'em!" and so rather out to be the instrument of the Fates in the tragic climax of one of the most poignantly beautiful love stories that the American stage has seen.

"SALVAGE" ROLE IS FAMOUS STARS' BEST
Miss Frederick Portrays Dual Role With Exception Skill in R-C Picture
Few actresses would have had the courage to attempt to create a role, rather role, as difficult and as large as those which Miss Frederick so masterfully portrays in "Salvage," her most recent Robertson-Cole production, which will be shown at the Empress Theatre Monday and Tuesday.

REMARKABLE WM. A. BRADY
PICTURE OF "LIFE" A STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

Various Roles of Thompson Buchanan's Celebrated Play Are Portrayed by Noted Stage and Screen Players. Headed by Jack Mower, Arline Pretty and Rod La Rocque.

Admittedly one of the best screen melodramas produced in recent years,
"Life," a William A. Brady production for Paramount, will be shown at the Empire Theatre next Friday and Saturday. Written by Thompson Buchanan, the story of "Life" is one that lends itself admirably to the screen.

To interpret "Life" on the screen,
Mr. Brady engaged an admirable cast, including several players with distinguished reputations on the Broadway stage. Leonard Cooke, who plays the inequitable chief of detectives, played opposite Mary Nash in last season's new play, "The Name Is Woman," at the Playhouse in New York.

Nita Naldi, who in "Life" proves a fascinating screen siren, had a leading role in the cast of "Opportunity," the Owen Davis melodrama which Mr.
Brady presented at the 48th Street Theatre, New York. She will be remembered for her fine performance in support of John Barrymore in the paramount screen version of "Dr.
Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Rod La Rocque, who plays a debonair and polished dier of wild devil days, "Life," had a prominent role in support of Alice Brady in "Anna Arrands," which went on tour after a successful engagement at the Playhouse. He has won a wide following in motion picture and had an important role in George Fitzmaurice's production for Paramount, "Paying the Piper."

Effingham Pinta, as "Dora Mills," plays the same role in "Life" that he created in the Buchanan-Brady melodrama at the Manhattan Opera House, New York.

In addition to these players, the cast line-up of "Life" includes Arline Pretty, Jack Mower, J. H. Gilmore, Edwin Stanley and Geoffrey Stein.

PAULINE FREDERICK STRIKES
BIG NOTE IN DRAMA

Plays Dual Role in Stirring Play of Mother Love—An Artistic Screen Entertainment

A woman, loyal, true and upright, with the deep-rooted love for home and children that is the heritage of every woman, a woman whose credit has been to get gold and whose highest ideal of marriage is the perpetuation of his name and race so that more gold may be gathered; a woman who has in the journey of life lost her more noble instincts, and has become a sudden, wreck of humanity; a man clean, honorable and faithful who is plunged into a tragedy which threatens to leave an everlasting mark of shame.

These are the characters who carry the main thread of the story in "Salvage," Pauline Frederick's latest Ra-bertson-Cole super-special production, to be shown at the Empire Theatre Monday and Tuesday. A drama that is alive and thrilling in its humanity, these characters, each to be individual of a distinct type, are thrown together by a strange destiny.

Plays a Dual Role

Pauline Frederick enacts the dual role of the two women, with a play of changing feeling that lends realism to every mood she portrays. The screen has never seen acting of a more compelling or sincere nature than Miss Frederick invests in her roles.

But the features of "Salvage" are not confined to the cast. The settings are perhaps the finest of their sort ever put upon the screen. The background scene, for example, touches a high point of artistry. The setting is simple yet so well arranged it proves one of the most effective in the production. Scores of smartly dressed men and women as guests are seated about a long table heaped high with pink and white sweet peas, roses and delicate ferns.

Miss Frederick, who wears many a gorgeous gown in the production is attired in one of silver brocade trimmed with pearls and with a train over two yards long. There is, in fact, much more designed to appeal to the feminine fancy.

Last week we advertised Coal Stoves bought before the war and only in use for two months and replies came from several coal mining towns. The advance in price of stoves is ridiculous. They will probably be sold this week at school houses, large rooms, etc. Enough said for the space we have left.

XMAS SPECIALTIES

No merchant in his sane senses bought fancy goods at high prices for Xmas and New Year's Gifts. In the first place he would not sell much and in the second he would be criminally tempting people to buy what they could do without. There are so many cases of privation that one can help if they will make presents that will be useful. A present should be received in the spirit that it is given and not by its intrinsic value. By buying presents suitable for these hard times you have a large list to choose from. Among the many suitable gifts we offer you: Handkerchiefs, Hand Bags, Men's ties, all put up in fancy cartons. Then for useful presents what more thoughtful present than a pair of boots, clothing, etc. To a person with a large heart there are things and goods in great numbers to choose from.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL NEWS

Mrs. A. Young of Macleod is spending a few days in Calgary.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Pringle of Macleod were visitors to Lethbridge this week.

Ernie Charlton of Barons was a visitor at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Charlton for the week-end.

We are sorry to report that Mr. Vernon Pearson, the town engineer, is confined to his bed, suffering from an attack of La Grippe.

Inspector Lindsay, of the R.C.M.P. in Macleod, has been confined to his bed during the last few days suffering from a very bad attack of influenza.

Miss Veronica Parker, of Macleod, has just returned from the Mayo Bros. Institute in Rochester, Minn., where she has been undergoing a treatment for throat infection.

A somewhat serious accident occurred when R. Latzinger, of Macleod, while unloading a hay rack some two weeks ago fell and broke two ribs. The unfortunate man was conveyed to his home and received medical attention. He is progressing satisfactorily and hopes to be around in the course of the next few days.

Jean B. Picard of Mt. Lake was unfortunate in losing the sight of his right eye recently. Mr. Picard was on his way to his farm from Macleod when a bad gust of wind blew sand in his eye. It gave him some trouble but he did not at first consider the matter as serious, the eye not improving he consulted specialists in Calgary, who were, however, unable to remedy the trouble, the inflammation having developed too far.

R. Wallis of Calgary was a business visitor to Macleod this week.

F. Tatham, of the Blood Indian Reserve, was a visitor to Macleod for two days last week.

R. Watson, president of the Commercial Travelers Association, was a visitor to Macleod this week.

A large number of people, both young and old who delight in the art of skating are having a good time on the river these days. The ice is in good shape for skating and from snow and dirt.

The oratory effort of Engineer Pearson at the Public Meeting of Ratepayers at the Town Hall this week was greatly appreciated. Mr. Pearson handled his subject in a masterly manner and his report regarding the town utilities was much appreciated.

Major R. F. Barnes, officer commanding the Macleod Battery, is expected back in Town in the course of the next few days. Major Barnes went to Winnipeg to take a special course in Artillery Training and came through with flying colors. The officer commanding the local battery has had many years' experience in militia. He enlisted and went overseas with an Infantry Battalion in 1915 and after being wounded and recovering pointed the air force, and did some good work as pilot in this unit.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Suarez, of Appleby, Ohio, were visitors to Macleod this week and spent several days here. Mr. Suarez was here chiefly for the purpose of looking over farming conditions in the west and he was advised on good authority from Appleby to come to Macleod where they are now constructing a large irrigation project. Mr. Suarez, a farmer of many years experience in the States, says that Macleod looks good to him, and in all probability we will have the gentleman and his family as Macleod residents before many months.

The Garage Men of Southern Alberta, Local No. 7, held a meeting at Macleod on Saturday, November 26th, for the purpose of organizing the Garage Men's Association. The main object of the association is to better conditions in the garage business both for mechanics and owners. The surroundings town were well represented and the association was organized with F. A. Adams, Macleod, president and W. McAllister, Carleton Place, as secretary. Mr. Hyde, district organizer, was present and gave some valuable information along the lines of better conditions.

The regular meeting of the council of the Municipality of Bright met on Saturday, December 3rd. After the regular routine of business, the Council introduced and passed a by-law which will be given to the extent of $150.00 per family, and no more. This limit is set by the Department in Edmonton and is guaranteed by the government, but will become a lien on the land of the person receiving the assistance.

The Municipal Affairs in Macleod evidently do not cause any great interest in Macleod, or else the ratepayers are perfectly satisfied with the administration they are receiving from the City Fathers. In all probability it is the latter. There is no doubt whatever that Mayor Fawcett assisted by his Councilors are the right men in the right place, hence the residents and property owners in Macleod decided to return the following gentlemen as Councilors by acclamation, to keep up the good work of the past two years: Councilors R. T. McNichol, A. McLeod and F. Thewlis. The election of school trustees for the Town of Macleod caused little or no interest, in fact, there was no election as the retiring officers, J. L. Fawcett and H. Little in the Public School and T. H. Shewan and J. J. Burke of the Separate School were returned to office by acclamation. The four officers who were returned are gentlemen of unquestionable ability regarding school work and the affairs of education in the town could not have been left in better hands.

On account of lack of space by reason of Christmas advertising the column of "Business Locals" will be omitted till after Christmas. To make up to the advertiser for this omission we treat our write-up of local store windows to appear before Xmas in The Times will prove a satisfactory bait. Thanking you, Ladies and Gentlemen (with our best bow and winning smile)—Merry Christmas.

DEATH OF MRS. F. THEWLIS

It is with sorrow we record the passing away of one of Macleod's respected citizens in the person of the late Mrs. Sarah Thewlis. Her death was not unexpected as she had been ill for some time, but the end came quite suddenly. She had a very severe attack early on Tuesday morning from which she hardly regained consciousness and about 7:30 p.m. she breathed her last. The deceased lady came from England and has resided in Macleod ever since. She was interested in every good work and her presence will be greatly missed in the Methodist Church of which she was a most active member. Possessed of high qualities of leadership and tireless energy she took a leading part in the work of the Ladies' Aid, the Missionary Society and who taught in the Sunday School. Although very low in health she attended the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Roger Hunt, a few weeks ago.

The sympathy of the community will be extended freely to her bereaved husband, to Miss Edith Thewlis and to Mrs. Hunt who was unable to reach home until after her mother's death.

The funeral took place from the Methodist Church Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the service being conducted by her pastor, Rev. G. D. Armstrong. The following acted as pallbearers: Messrs. H. Bards, A. R. McFadden, R. T. McNichol, F. H. Brooks, W. Charlton and C. Brewster.

NITA NALDI NOTED ACTRESS IN FINE "LIFE" ROLE

Player Who Was With Barrymore in "Dr. Jekyll and Hyde" in Film

Nita Naldi, a well known actress of stage and screen who scored a great success in support of John Barrymore in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," a Paramount picture which has become a screen classic, has an excellent role in William A. Brady's melodrama picture, "Life," released by Paramount, which will be the feature at the Empress Theatre next Friday and Saturday. According to New York reviewers, her characterization is one of the outstanding features of this massive production.

Nita Naldi is seen as Muriel Barriefford, an adventuress, in the story. Muriel is extravagant, coldly calculating and lends herself to the audacious schemes of Ralph Stuyvesant, son of a wealthy broker and her admirer, and of Thomas Burnett, a rascally member of the Stuyvesant firm, to fasten a crime on Billy Reid, the hero. Her portrayal of this unusually dramatic vamp role is said to reveal her as a thorough artist who has few if any superiors in her special line of work.

The cast generally is of the best. Jack Mower, the leading man, is well known as an actor, he having appeared in many Broadway productions. Arline Pretty, the leading woman, is a noted stage and screen player who is not unfamiliar to Paramount audiences. Rod La Rocque, who has a heavy role in "Life," was seen to advantage in "Paying the Piper," a recent Paramount success. Others in the cast include Leonard Meeker, J. H. Gilmore, Effingham Pinto, Curtis Cooksey and Geoffrey Stein.
